Another Frightful Accident.

A PURTHER ACCOUNT.

Should Memphis persist in commencing her Shreveport railway at Devails Bind, Little Rock, says the Gazette, must build a road from Little Bock to Camden to Intersect that road. On an air-line the distance, a correspondent mays, is eighty three miles. It would pass through the southeast corner of Salins, through

In reply to the cell made on me in the morning papers, to serve as councilman from the Seventh ward, I have to say that I accept, and, if elected, will do all I can to further the interests of the city.

A. J. WHITE. A Pretty Pickle.

e only trouble is, that in several distric re is more good malerial for the may e of municipal law-givers than can b ned, and the danger is that the best v sen by the worst.

The Thinning-out Process.

Let the candidate in the several wards, the honest, worthy gentlemen, select each at equal number of friends and let these designate aspirants that are to hand of. Failing in this, there will be a plan of co-operation devised and adopted by which unity of action will be assured. The people, in their efforts to seeme an honest and capable city government, do not intend to be cheated of their purpose by little wanties of individuals. The time is brief and compromise must be effected. It is easy to prepare a general ticket to be woted for over the whole city. But it would be better if the ward candidates should settle these local matters among themselves. The Thinning-out Process

The Regross of Momphis Condenn Outrages in Arkaness.

Nearly all the other teschers were remembered by their scholars in presents appropriate and benotiful. There is something touching in the sympathy thus shown by the scholars for their teachers. It is more expressive than language, and beepeaks a love that should always exist in order that the one may be stimulated to the performance of duty, and the other be in-spired by the confidence that only exist where love is. We wish teachers and pupils a merry Christmas. on our counters this evening.

Hanging of the Segro Frank Mays at A special correspondent telegraphs the ArPEAL the following particulars of the execution of the sentence of death upon the negro Frank Mays, condemned for having murdered his wife last spring:

GRENADA, MISSISSIPT, December 22.

Billiors Appeal—At about fifteen minutes past two this evening. Frank Mays, a negro, was hung at this place for the murder of his wife in April last. About half-past one o'elock Sheriff French, with his deputies, entered Mays' cell; he seemed to be in a stripor, and was assisted to the wagon by the sheriff's deputies. His alster met and spoke to him at the jall-door, but he made no reply, and paid no attention to his mother and other relatives who were present. Arriving at the gallows, a short distance from the jait, Mays had to be carried to the stand; he said nothing, sod seemed to take no notice of anyone around him, would converse with no one, and made no confession. About two thousand negroes were present, who looked on with seeming indifference. At half-past two the body was taken down and given to his relatives, when the crowd quietly dispersed.

was made the recipient of a very handsome ivory card-case, a gift from her pupis, which was presented by 17, John Taylor, who has won the esteem of all friends of public education by his devotion to the canse and his advocacy of the claims of the children of the city to be educated at any cost in all the most useful branches of learn-long. But this presentation to Miss Tovell was dury one of many such seasonable episodes. Nearly all the other teachers were remembered by their achielers in presents appropriate and on an air-line the distance, a correspondent says, is eighty three miles. It would pass through the southeast corner of Saline, through the center of Grant, leaving Sheridan a little to the left, go through the center of Da las, passing through Frinceton on to Camden. The routes not as rough as many suppose, her the combry as worthless. This road would pass through some of the very finest uplands in the State. We repeat, if the managers of the State. We repeat, if the managers of the State worthless. This road would pass through some of the very finest uplands in the State. We repeat, if the managers of the State worthless that the same passing through some of the very finest uplands in the State. We repeat, if the managers of the State and to Camden. Now that the Cairo and Fulton is moving along quietly and smoothly, and in a year or two will give us a road through the southwestern portion of the State and on through Texas, and the difficulties which have embarrassed the Fort Smith road for the past sen months have been amicably adjusted, and our projected road to Hot Springs making a good beginning—iet us turn our attention to the southeast. We can build a road to Camden, with proper exertions, at least by the time Memphis reaches that point; and if before, we will secure a trade which otherwise might be secured to our peginbor down the river—Pine Haff—or to Memphis. But really we see no cause for jealong on the part of anybody. Let Helena coatinue to throw out her iron arms; he themphis extend her combretions; let Pine Hauff and all the onterprises that one enter at that point, and its little Rock push forward her reads south and west—there is room for all of us. There will be no conflict. Memphis should begin her Shreveport railroad here, if for no other reason than because the ecunity through which she proposes to run belongs proverly to the other roads which are already penstraling that section. But as additional reasons for commented these:
